Snow forecast - Thursday 29 November 2012

Europe

Good news. Most places have seen plenty of snow and it will stay cold now with more to come over the next 7-10 days.

Detailed forecast:

Austria

Western Austria will see plenty of snow today (to low levels) with snow showers spreading further east as the day goes on. Friday will continue mostly cold and cloudy with light flurries in places. Saturday should brighten up a bit, but it will stay cold and more snow is possible in the west late on Sunday.

Snow has reached Austria at last - www.lech-zuers.at

France

It will be mostly cloudy today with light flurries (to low altitudes) slowly dying out later. The best of any brightness will be in the south. It will feel cold, especially at altitude, with a strong northerly wind. Friday will be much brighter with sunny spells particularly in the south. It will remain cold. Saturday should also be fine but more snow is expected in the northern Alps later on Sunday.

Heavy overnight snow in Val d'Isère. More due on Sunday - www.valdisere.com

Italy

The snow will slowly die out from the western Italian Alps today but will persist further east (Dolomites). Friday will see further flurries in the east but much brighter skies further west. It will remain cold. Saturday should see plenty of sunshine for all parts despite low temperatures. Cloud will move back into the western Alps on Sunday with largely sunny conditions further east.

Brightening up today over western Italy. Epic conditions expected in Sestriere for its opening on Saturday - www.vialattea.it

Switzerland

Snow showers will die away from southern regions today but will persist further north, especially north-east where they will still be heavy at times. It will feel cold everywhere. Friday will be much brighter in most regions but some flurries will persist on the eastern side of the northern Alps. It will be cold and bright everywhere on Saturday with more snow arriving in the north and west later on Sunday.

Outlook:

Monday should be cold and bright but more snow is expected across the northern and western Alps on Tuesday. Beyond that it remains unsettled with the chance of yet more snow, particularly later in the week.

North America

More snow is forecast in Western Canada, though some rain is also likely at resort level in Whistler.

In the US, more snow is forecast for California (Mammoth, Heavenly) and over the weekend in Utah (Snowbird), Wyoming (Jackson Hole) and Montana (Big Sky). Colorado resorts such as Vail and Aspen will have to wait until next Tuesday, however, before their next chance of significant snow.

Next detailed forecast on Monday 3 December, but see Today in the Alps for daily updates
