Snow forecast

Updated: 11am Friday 17 January 2014

It remains unsettled in the Alps, but with the weather coming from the south it is again the southern Alps (especially Italy) that will see the most snow this weekend. Further north - protected by the Foehn wind - there will be little or no snow, at least until Monday.

Detailed forecast:

Austria

There will be snow at times in the far south of Austria this weekend, heaviest close to the Italian border with a rain/snow limit between 800 and 1400m. Elsewhere it will be mostly dry and relatively mild with variable cloud and the best of any brightness in the northern Alps.

France

Saturday and Sunday will remain mostly cloudy, with snow at times for the southern French Alps. Further north, a few showers can't be ruled out but many areas will stay dry. The rain/snow limit will be between 1200 and 1600m, lowest in the south.

---

Italy

There will be plenty more snow falling across the Italian Alps this weekend, both west and east with a rain/snow limit between 800 and 1200m.

Switzerland

Saturday and Sunday will be predominantly cloudy with some snow at times in the south, especially close to the Italian border. Further north, a few showers can't be ruled out, but many areas will stay dry. The rain/snow limit will be between 800 and 1400m.

---

Outlook:

It will remain unsettled early next week with further snow in places, but still little sign of any significant snow in the northern and eastern Austrian resorts where it is most needed.
