Snow forecast

Updated: 12.30pm Friday 4 April 2014

The weekend weather is looking a bit mixed for the Alps. Many places will stay dry, but there will be a scattering of showers - especially on Saturday - with the best of any sunshine on Sunday. It will remain relatively warm.

Detailed forecast:

Austria

Saturday will be a day of sunny spells and scattered showers, particularly in the afternoon with (locally) a dusting of snow possible above 2200m. Many places will, however stay dry.

There will be little change on Sunday except that any showers will become more isolated and confined to the northern Alps.

Monday will be dry, warm and mostly sunny.

France

Saturday will be a day of variable cloud, some sunny spells and the risk of the odd well scattered shower here and there (snow 2300m). Many places will, however, stay dry.

Sunday and Monday will be dry with long sunny spells and warm afternoon temperatures.

Italy

Saturday will be mostly dry with sunny spells and just the odd isolated shower (snow 2300m), most likely in the west.

Sunday and Monday will be mostly dry with plenty of sunshine and warm afternoon temperatures.

Plenty of dry weather across the Alps over the next few days, but also the risk of the odd shower. This is Kronplatz, Italy - Photo: foto-webcam.eu

Switzerland

Saturday will see sunny spells and variable cloud. Many places will stay dry but a few showers will develop later, particularly in the northern Alps (snow 2200m).

Sunday and Monday will be dry, mostly sunny with warm afternoon temperatures.
